ASCC-SSI Makes Thanksgiving Donation to Hope House

By James Kneubuhl, ASCC Press Officer

In the spirit of community service, students and faculty from the Samoan Studies Institute (SSI) at the American Samoa Community College gave the residents of Hope House an early start to the Thanksgiving festivities last week with a donation of gifts and a presentation of traditional Samoan entertainment. "Caring for the elderly and others in need is a significant part of our culture," said SSI Director Okenaisa Fauolo-Manila, "and this is a chance for our students to learn about and appreciate the work done at these places such as Hope House and Safe Homes."

The donation this past Thursday, November 15th, marked the third year in a row that the SSI has visited Hope House during the Thanksgiving season. In addition to the presentation of gifts and an entertainment program organized by the Student Association for Faasamoa (SAF), the visit also gave the SSI students and faculty the opportunity to interact with the Hope House residents. "For many of the students, this was their first time at Hope House. Some were surprised and some became quite emotional," Fauolo-Manila observed. For the first time, the SSI also invited children living at the Department of Human & Social Services (DHSS) Safe House to be part of the occasion, and the youngsters also received gifts of reading books and other necessities.

The visit officially got underway with a prayer by Jashua Aiono, followed by a hymn and the performance of four different dances by the SAF, after which that organization's vice president Mago Faleosalafai Tipa made the formal presentation of gifts to the Hope House residents. Funded entirely by the SSI students and faculty, the gifts consisted mostly of practical items such as towels, linen, shampoo, conditioners, lotions, powders and t shirts. Sister Elsa of Hope House and Sandra Fruean of DHSS both offered remarks of appreciation to the SAF students and SSI faculty present, who included Director Fauolo-Manila, Teleiai Ausage, Sia Achica, Patrick Mafoe, and SAF advisor Nunuimalo Apisaloma Toleafoa. "It's important to plant the seed of Thanksgiving and giving back to the community through the hearts of these students," said Nunuimalo, "so that later in life, they will appreciate what they have and not take things for granted."

"This is an educational experience for the students, not just in how vital it is that we recognize and support human service organizations in our community, but also in how we can share a positive feeling with those being served, for whom singing and dancing is something they don't often experience," reflected Fauolo-Manila. For the SAF students, many of whom traveled to the Solomon Islands this summer as part of the American Samoa delegation to the Festival of the Pacific Arts, their performance duties are not over just yet. Fauolo-Manila said the SAF will also join the rest of the College for their performance during this year's Arts Council Christmas Program in December.

ASCC Enjoying Successful Online Pre-Registration

By James Kneubuhl, ASCC Press Officer

From now until December 6th, regular continuing students at the American Samoa Community College (ASCC) have the option to pre-register for the classes they wish to take during the spring 2013 semester which commences in January. Given the difficulties the College experienced during the registration process for the current semester, some students were bracing for a repeat of the problems they encountered in late August, but initial reports indicate that registration for the coming semester is proceeding with no significant problems and in many ways is going more efficiently than ever before.

The ASCC Admission & Records/Financial Aid Office (ARFAO) estimates that in the first week of its availability, around 200 students took advantage of the new online registration process. Continuing students can now receive a user name and password to sign up for their classes using any computer on campus. "Previous pre-registration lines were similar to regular registration lines," observed ARFAO Director Sifagatogo Tuitasi. "There would be noticeably long lines outside of the Business and Admissions Offices. This was a concern because before, students would miss classes because they thought they had to stand in line to ensure they would get into the courses they wanted for the next semester. It hasn't been like that this time."

The current pre-registration has seen no long lines outside of either the Business or Admissions offices. "I think this is due to all the changes that were implemented in the fall semester, including the move to online registration," said Grace Tulafono, head of the ASCC Management Information Systems (MIS) division. "All continuing students were directed to the computer lab to register for their courses, and only specific cases were referred back to the Admissions Office. Our main reason for improving the registration process is to shorten these lines and move the students along the process quicker, and I think for this pre-registration, we've accomplished that."

Tulafono explained how the current advancements in the registration process build upon previously tested methods. "The only other pre-registration where online technology was used was the first beta testing priority registration done with only 12 students," she said. "This is the first pre-registration where online registration is available to all continuing students, and it is proven very successful in allowing students to register themselves into courses. The main technical changes still being tested are the rules for prerequisites that we have been working on since the previous registration. So far, all of our changes are working properly."

The various campus offices that play crucial roles in the registration process collaborated on the planning and development of the new system. A group comprised of representatives from the Business Office, MIS, ARFAO, Academic Affairs, Trades & Technology, and Teacher Education meets every semester to discuss ways of improving registration. "We discuss the process and how the system can help implement it better," said Tulafono. "The system itself is used for more than just online registration. It's also used throughout ASCC to manage finances, for procurement, property management, and human resources, and to process financial aid data."

For MIS, the work to prepare for and improve the ASCC registration process and other technology services for students is ongoing. "Our activities change during the pre-registration and registration periods, but this remains a priority, so it is part of the workload throughout the year," said Tulafono. Reflecting on the challenges of managing a system suited to the particular needs of ASCC and its students, the MIS Director expressed pride in how the College uses its available resources to its best advantage. "This is a true testament of doing a lot with a little," Tulafono explained. "ASCC does not have the type of money as other US institutions, nor do we charge the type of tuition they do, but we are serving our students with the same type of technology available at other schools. The Colleague software system that we work with is also used by over 750 institutions in North America, including Chaminade University in Hawaii, and the University of Guam."

For more information on ASCC and its programs, visit the College's web page at: www.amsamoa.edu.

Wealth, Success and Love

A woman came out of her house and saw 3 old men with long white beards sitting in her front yard. She did not recognize them. She said "I don't think I know you, but you must be hungry. Please come in and have something to eat." "Is the man of the house home?", they asked. "No", she said "He's out." "Then we cannot come in," they replied.

In the evening when her husband came home, she told him what had happened. "Go tell them I am home and invite them in!" The woman went out and invited the men in. "We do not go into a House together" they replied. "Why is that?" she wanted to know. One of the old men explained: "His name is Wealth," he said pointing to one of his friends, and then pointed to another one, "He is Success, and I am Love." Then he added, "Now go in and discuss with your husband which one of us you want in your home."

The woman went in and told her husband what was said. Her husband was overjoyed. "How nice!," he said. "Since that is the case, let us invite Wealth. Let him come and fill our home with wealth!" His wife disagreed. "My dear, why don't we invite Success?" Their daughter-in-law was listening from the other corner of the house. She jumped in with her own suggestion: "Would it not be better to invite Love? Our home will then be filled with love!" "Let us hear our daughter-in-law's advice," said the husband to his wife. "Go out and invite Love to be our guest." The woman went out and asked the 3 old men, "Which one of you is Love? Please come in and be our guest." Love got up and started walking toward the house. The other 2 also got up and followed him. Surprised, the lady asked Wealth and Success: "I only invited Love, Why are you coming in?" The old men replied together: "If you had invited Wealth or Success, the other two of us would've stayed out, but since you invited Love, wherever He goes, we go with him. Wherever there is Love, there is also Wealth and Success!!!!!!"
